A noon-hour fire Monday of this week at the Vulcan Seed Cleaning Plant damaged the top floor of the elevator-styled building but was knocked out by the Vulcan Volunteer Fire Brigade before it reached its dangerous potential.

Shortly before 1:00 p.m. Percy Myers of Vulcan turned south on the highway bound for Lethbridge and on glancing at the Seed Cleaning Plant, operated by his son, Elwood, spotted flames coming from a top floor wall vent. He rushed to the plant where Elwood was working in his office and immediately the call was phoned in.

Seconds after the third whine of the siren the first and second fire trucks were on the road and on reaching the scene one hose with water from the 500 gallon tank on the new rural fire truck was sent up the elevator "lift" to the fire area.

Firemen George Richardson and Ray Beckner were picked for the first try at the flames above and had much of the interior fire under control by the time extra outside hoses were run up the lower levels of the building.

Delay in getting water to supplement the tank supply was caused by the distance from the nearest source. Hoses were run from the Vulcan Body Shop cistern, a distance of three blocks. Another temporary cut-off of long-distance supply occurred when a four inch hole broke out in a worn length of hose, which had to be replaced.

Although smoke came from all sides and top of the upper floor of the plant, very little flame showed and there was no explosion or burst of fire through the roof such as happened at the cafe fire of two weeks ago.

By about 1:30 p.m. firemen were poking out through the top of the plant searching the roof for final traces of fire.

Insurance adjusters arrived by late afternoon and could give no cause for the fire. The tops of four carrying "legs" are located on the fire floor but no machinery was being used prior to the fire and the adjuster claimed the room was clean, discounting grain dust as a cause. Fire broke out in the bottom of the north-east corner of the floor, worked up the corner walls and along the ceiling.

Estimate of damage has not been given. It is expected a new top will have to be built for the plant but the manager did not feel the damage to equipment would be serious. 1148 bushels of rye and 830 bushels of wheat were in the building and will be inspected for moisture.

The plant was opened two years ago and, with equipment, is valued at about $60,000.

THE WEATHER

Excellent harvest weather has again prevailed this week, with daytime temperatures in the 80's and little wind. Many farmers are now finished except for flax.

The recent Provincial 4-H eliminations held at Olds named 19 4-H Club members to attend three conferences in the United States and Canada as representatives of Alberta. The 19 winners, who will be sponsored by the Alberta Department of Agriculture, were selected from 180 candidates who competed on the basis of club performance and a two day knowledge test for the opportunity to attend the meetings. Four members will attend the State 4-H Conference at Bozeman, Mont., during August, 14 will go to the National Club Week at Toronto and Ottawa in November and a Duchess 4-H'er Fulton Beck will be a member of the ten man delegation to the National Conference at Washington, D.C., next April. Shown above are John Campbell, Mossleigh, and Arnold Rand, Innisfail, delegates from the Field Crops Project.

New Medical Clinic In Use

The new Vulcan Clinic was occupied on Monday of this week by Dr. A. D. Tompkins and Dr. M. E. Kozlowski and their staff, moving from the former medical clinic building — the Carson Block — just next door.

The new clinic, which is leased by the medical men, is part of the just completed Seales Block which also houses the new I.G.A. food market. The clinic is 25 x 90 feet, giving almost double the space available in the older building.

A vestibule leads to a large, well appointed waiting room, off which is the spacious business office. A corridor leads from the waiting room and gives access to the other rooms, which include a well equipped laboratory, physiotherapy room, a staff lounge and rest room and six separate examining rooms.

Wood panelling in either mahogany or golden ash lends warmth to every room and new desks, chairs and other furniture add to the modern appearance of the clinic.

Mrs. Margaret Clayton is receptionist and in charge of the business office and Mrs. Loreen Horne, R.N., is the clinic nurse.

The Carson Block has been leased to the Vulcan Civil Defence Unit (Emergency Measures Organization).

Catholic League Meets At Brant

A small attendance was present at the August meeting of the Brant CWL, held at the home of Mrs. Georgina Wollersheim.

The president, Mrs. Messeri, led the group in the recitation of the league prayers, prayers for the Pope and for the foreign missions. Mrs. Gallagher reported that Mrs. Walters of Nanton has finished sewing the new altar linens. A gift of thanks and appreciation is to be sent to Mrs. Walters for the lovely work done.

The annual fall bingo was discussed and planned and a tentative date set for Oct. 20. It was decided that free coffee and doughnuts be served during intermission. Cigarettes, pop and gum will be sold throughout the evening. Mrs. Southgate was asked to inquire into the purchasing of a bingo machine before this date.

The next Sunday being First Communion Sunday, arrangements were made to have fresh flowers for the altars. It was decided that the older high school girls be asked to sit in with the younger catechism class so as to be ready to substitute when the regular teachers were absent.

Lunch was served by Mrs. Lewis and Mrs. Southgate, assisted by Mrs. Wollersheim. The hostess prize was won by Mrs. Rhodes. During lunch Mrs. Southgate reported on her retreat at Cochrane. Four members of the parish had attended.

IGA Supermarket Open For Business

At 9:00 a.m. Wednesday morning the doors of the new IGA Supermarket swung open to bring to Vulcan and district an impressive, spacious food center, located on the former site of Vulcan Motor Products garage.

Under construction since early spring, the final few weeks of preparation have been busy ones for store manager and part-owner Charlie Boutland, but an hour or so before the first customer arrived the meat and other perishable produce were out on display and everything was ready.

In addition to Charlie, local contacts are centered around the store as the second partner in the enterprise is Charles Northcott, another well-known Vulcan business man now at Brooks. The building is owned by Stan Scales of Vulcan who also built the adjoining Medical Centre, now in its first few days of occupancy.

The new IGA store established here in conjunction with the closing out of the Fulton Brothers Red & White Store. The Red & White stock was taken over by the IGA and former Red & White customers will also meet familiar faces in the new store as some of the Red & White staff are under a new roof with Charles Boutland.

As a part of the IGA chain the local store will stress a constant supply of top quality nationally advertised canned and packaged foods, garden fresh fruits and vegetables brought in daily, and the store through its national flavor feels able to keep abreast

Fall Rye Up In Three Days

The summer rains may have come too late for much of the far east country out of Vulcan but they have resulted in phenomenal early growth of fall-sown grain.

Budd Andrews, on his place about four miles west of town, is still shaking his head over a field of rye planted Tuesday, Aug. which saw sunlight only three days later. Under normal conditions a crop is planted and the green stuff is not expected for at least a week but Budd claims you could look over his field in the early evening against the setting sun and see a mantle of green over the dark earth.

Budd began seeding on the Tuesday and on Wednesday was held up by cultivators so left it a half day. Growth is so spontaneous that the rounds seeded later are quite noticeable.

The moisture conditions of the soil and the heat of the sun are combining to make all this possible. Budd reports the top half inch of soil is dry and warm, while below there's plenty of moisture.

One hope of many farmers planting fall crops is that the grasshoppers aren't lined up too deep awaiting the green meal.

Lionettes Plan Series Pool

The August meeting of the Vulcan Lionettes Club was held at the Vulcan Cafe Monday evening with a fairly good attendance.

The main discussion of the evening was the World Series baseball cards which will be on display at the Fashionette Shoppe at the end of this week. The proceeds from the sale of the cards will go toward sponsoring Senior Citizens' night which has become an annual event in Vulcan. The date of the Senior Citizens' night has not as yet been decided but will probably be during the latter part of October or first part of November.

Good Water "A Must"

Faith in Vulcan's future as a good business town has been evidenced lately by construction of new commercial buildings such as the Vulcan Bakery and the newly opened I.G.A. Store and the enlargement or remodeling in recent months of several other business places such as the Vulcan Food Market and Town & County Cleaners. The new Vulcan Clinic was occupied Monday of this week and construction of the new wing of the Municipal Hospital is now under way.

In addition to this type of construction, many new homes have been built in Vulcan in recent years and several more are in various stages of construction at the present time. The owners of these new homes are not fly-by-night citizens; they like Vulcan and are investing thousands of dollars in new homes in the belief that it will continue to be a good town in which to live.

The one really black mark against Vulcan at the present time is the water situation. We are lacking in quality more than quantity of this all-important resource but without lots of good water Vulcan cannot continue to grow.

The town council has been going through a difficult time this past year, trying to decide just what the best solution to the problem is and what steps to take. Suggestions and findings of engineering firms have been contradicted by the provincial board dealing with water resources and research, to the point where it is hard to know just what to believe and what course of action is correct.

At the present time, a private well-drilling firm is sinking numerous holes in an effort to find good water in quantity. Water, in varying quantity, can be struck almost anywhere but water that is relatively free of Glauber's salts is hard to find in this locality. Two of the town's present seven wells produce good, salt-free water, but the water from the other five wells contains Glauber's salts. The well-drillers are gambling on finding a water source or sources that will produce up to 100 gallons a minute of comparatively pure water. If they fail, the next best bet seems to be a $150,000 expenditure on pipeline and plant to utilize the airport wells.

The best source of good water for Vulcan is, of course, Lake McGregor. This however, would require an expenditure of close to three-quarters of a million dollars — far out of reach of the town's borrowing capacity.

Good water, in quantity sufficient to meet all requirements and at a reasonable rate, is a "must" if Vulcan is to continue its present steady rate of growth. This goal should be all-important and the town's course of action to achieve it should be purposeful and decisive.

Aquarium's Angler's Guide Booklet Popular

"Catch Them All From Calgary," a guide book to some of the best fishing spots in Southern and Central Alberta, appears to be living up to its name.

The Calgary Aquarium distributed thousands of the booklets this summer, and many anglers now returning from fishing holidays report good catches as a result of following the guide book's advice.

Where catches were not satisfactory, adverse factors such as poor fishing weather or an abundance of fish food in the ponds and streams may have been at least partially responsible, according to Calgary Aquarium curator Elmer H. Taylor.

Besides details accessible fishing waters and the type of fish usually taken there, the free booklet gives the angler road directions, camping and picnicking information, bait advice — and plenty of encouragement. "The further upstream you go, the better the fishing is liable to be" is the suggestion to nimble fishing 30 miles up Bragg Creek, while those who choose the Highwood River are advised to "pick the good-looking spots and be patient, the fish are here in quantity."

For the angler who wants to take a good leisurely look at the fish he is after, the Calgary Aquarium's game fish display offers ample opportunity. On view in large fresh water tanks at the aquarium — located on Calgary Brewery grounds at 9th Ave. and 15th St. S.E. — are all types of game fish found in Alberta. They include rainbow and brown trout, cutthroat and dolly varden, brook trout, lake trout, pike, perch, walleyes and rocky mountain whitefish.

And the fisherman who catches a big one is always welcomed if he returns to the aquarium to show off his prize. Recently a fisherman landed a seven pound trout near Banff, but was unable to identify it. When he took it to the aquarium where Mr. Taylor identified it as a Dolly Varden he was encouraged to enter the specimen in an international fish-catching competition. Officials at the provincial fish hatchery, adjacent to the aquarium, verified the size and weight of the fish for official competitions.

Peter Beckner, eight-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Beckner, Majorville, is today recovering in Calgary General Hospital, from burns which may have proved fatal had it not been for the quick thinking and action of his 11-year-old brother, John.

At a recent fire on the Beckner farm it appears that Peter came into contact with the flames which were started when gasoline was accidentally ignited. John recognizing the danger immediately grabbed his younger brother and rolled him in the dirt, thus smothering the fire.

At the final meeting of the Milo United Church Boy's Club, Mayor Bob Bertrand presented John with a Bronze Safety Medal on behalf of the Club. He said, "John I would compliment you on your quick action backed up by your quick thinking which no doubt saved your brother's life or at least from much worse burns. It is a wonderful thing in a time of crisis to be able to do the right thing at the right time. Therefore on behalf of your Boy's Club I present you with this Bronze Safety Medal which I hope you will always keep as a reminder to you and others that tragedy can often be averted by keeping a level head."

Peter's reaction: "He really hurt me too!"

Wed At High River United Church

HENRY — GELLATLY

Bows of white satin marked the guest pews and baskets of fern with mauve and white baby mums were arranged in the chancel of the High River United Church for the afternoon ceremony which united in marriage Lois Marilyn Gellatly, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Gellatly of High River and Lorne Eugene Henry, younger son of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Henry of Majorville.

Rev. M. Johnson performed the ceremony and Mrs. Lian of High River played the wedding music. Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gown in full-length silk organza over satin, delicately appliqued with hand-clipped chintilly lace and an added touch of sequins and pearls. A coronet of pearls held her fingertip silk illusion net veil applied to match the dress. She carried a bouquet of red roses and her only jewellery was a single strand of pearls with tiny pearl ear-rings, a gift of the groom.

The bride's attendants were Mrs. Lenore Mackenzie of Calgary and Miss Linda Mowat of Edmonton, a cousin of the bride. Mrs. Mackenzie wore a dress of white nylon organza embroidered in pale green with green whimsy hat to match. She carried white daisies. Miss Mowat wore a similar dress embroidered in mauve with mauve whimsy hat and she carried white daisies.

Bruce Henry was his brother's best man and the ushers were Lyle Greaves, a cousin of the groom and James Gellatly, a brother of the bride.

Following the wedding, the bridal party with the parents of the bride and groom received 75 guests in the beautifully appointed Lower Church Hall. The bride's table was centered with a three-tiered wedding cake flanked by white candles and flowers. Harry Mowat of Edmonton acted as master of ceremonies and Neil Mowat of Parkland proposed the toast to the bride which was responded to by the groom.

Mrs. J. Prentice of Milo was in charge of the guest book with guests coming from Calgary, Edmonton, Milo, Vulcan, Majorville, Parkland and numerous other points in Alberta.

The bride changed to a two-piece beige dress with green accessories and a corsage of orange carnations for the wedding trip which was spent in Banff, Radium and Waterton Lakes.

In the early stages of the fire of Sunday night, August 12, volunteers evacuated office buildings and suites in the path of the flames. In the photo at left some of the furnishings from the suites in the Bruce block are shown piled on the street in front of the hotel. They were later hauled away to be moved back the next day. Luckily for tenants, the fire, in their direction was contained in the John Wolfe Hardware.

In the above picture the gutted remains of the New Club Cafe, the building in which the fire started, are shown. Fire started in the kitchen and spread to the store on either side of it. The owner of the cafe is expected in from Toronto next week. The lessee, Lee Park Sue of Vulcan, is presently negotiating for purchase of the lot and his future plans are to build new brick premises for a cafe.

The Simpson Plumbing building is pictured at right as flames reached their height. Barely visible on the roof of the adjoining Central Meats and Locker Plant is its owner Stu Joiner and an unidentified fireman directing a hose at the fire. Although only inches separated the two buildings the Joiner business escaped except for roof and wall damage. As is the case with others affected by the fire, plans are still indefinite with the plumbing business of John Simpson until insurance and such adjustment is settled. However his business is still being carried on and will be centered from the Simpson residence until a decision can be reached to rebuild on the former site, or sell the lot and take a location elsewhere.

day School classes are as follows: Junior class, Mrs. Berdella Sealock and Miss Hazel Beagle; primary class, Mrs. Audrey Lucas and Wilma Boe; beginners class, Mrs. Hazel Beagle and Mrs. Vivian Hanna, assisted by Mrs. Mary Stokes. It is expected Sunday School will start in October. Church will again resume in September with Rev. Sharpe in charge.

Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Sihlis left last Sunday to visit his parents at Olds and then will return to their home at Lumby, B.C.
